Informatics launches the Informatics Global Alumni

08 December 2005, Singapore – Informatics, a global leader in providing lifelong learning services has formally launched the Informatics Global Alumni.

The Newly-elected chairman spelled out an agenda to quickly implement an Informatics Alumni in each country where Informatics centres can be found. The alumni will offer avenues for members to participate, giving back to their local campus and the community: becoming a student mentor organising graduate recruiting initiatives in their company. An Alumni Ambassador should be appointed in each country with Informatics' presence and get local alumni involved in community service or some sports activities.

The Newly-elected Alumni chairman is Breyvan Tan, a true blue scholar from Informatics. He completed his tertiary education at Informatics, from his Diploma in Computer Studies in the year 1992 all the way up to his Bachelor of Science in Business Computing and Information Technology awarded by the University of Wales in the year 1995. Today, at the age of 32, he is an Executive Director – Sales, Informatics Singapore Domestic Operations.

"The Informatics Global Alumni is committed to keeping the Alumni network at Informatics and PurpleTrain healthy and strong by fostering lifelong partnerships between former students and friends." Said Breyvan

Alumni members will enjoy services such as retail benefits, be informed through the newsletter, attending enriching seminars, be invited to get-together sessions, participate in the online community to catch up with old friends and more.

Graduates are encouraged to join the alumni by registering online at www.informaticsgroup.com/alumni
